CIBER TO PRESENT AT THE COUNCIL OF SUPPLY CHAIN MANAGEMENT PROFESSIONALS ANNUAL GLOBAL CONFERENCE

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. – Sept. 2, 2009 – CIBER, Inc. (NYSE: CBR) today announced that Principal Supply Chain Executive Douglas Zopfi will present on Tuesday, Sept. 22 at the Council of Supply Chain Management Professionals (CSCMP) Annual Global Conference in Chicago, Ill.

Zopfi's presentation, "Practical Considerations for Evaluating the Benefits of a Low-Cost Country Sourcing Strategy," will be given at 10 a.m. in room W-181c. Attendees will gain a holistic and balanced understanding of the financial benefits, costs, and risks associated with low-cost country sourcing and learn about the need for a dynamic process to reassess past sourcing decisions and cost drivers to insure that initial savings projections are still being realized.

According to Zopfi, "This topic is highly pertinent for supply chain management professionals, especially in a struggling economy, and I am looking forward to presenting and networking at the conference with my peers."

CIBER will also have a booth at the Student Job Fair and Showcase on Sunday, Sept. 20 and will participate in the Learning Exchange on Monday, Sept. 21. The Learning Exchange brings together companies from all over the world to demonstrate the latest technology and allows participants to speak with companies about cutting-edge services and products.

The annual CSCMP conference, held this year at the McCormick Center in downtown Chicago, offers supply chain management practitioners professional education and personal growth opportunities. Attendees learn from global experts and network with thousands of colleagues.
